Notes from the LifeSmarts Team

LifeSmarts Alumni Monthly Update, October 1, 2024

Dear LifeSmarts Alum,

We've had a great start to the year, with more lessons and study guides available to students and educators than ever. October is National Economic Education Month when students focus on Personal Finance. Even as an Alum, these lessons are still available to you if you feel like you need a refresher. Access lessons here: <https://lifesmartsu.lifesmarts.org/>

Program Updates

New StudySmart Guides: The LifeSmarts curriculum covers a vast amount of knowledge, which can be overwhelming. To help, we created StudySmart guides for busy coaches and teams to quickly dive into key categories. Each guide includes essential facts, vocabulary, and more. Check them out!

New LEAP Leaders for 2024-2025:

LEAP (LifeSmarts Engagement Advisory Panel) is made up of outstanding LifeSmarts students chosen annually through a nomination process. Twelve students from ten states will serve on this year's panel, partnering with national staff to provide a youth perspective for the program.

New LifeSmarts U Lessons on Health Care Coverage: Sponsored by AARP, we've added three new lessons to help students understand their own health care coverage and that of family members they may care for. We're excited to offer these valuable lessons. I would personally recommend this to all of our Alumni that are entering the workforce or turning 26 soon.

Make sure you have our 2025 National LifeSmarts Championship marked on your calendar for April 24-27, 2025 in Chicago, IL! We look forward to working with you as we continue to provide real-world education to today's high school students.

Best regards,

Elena Robertson
